Goals

- Can recognise a series of more advanced modifiers and intensifiers and explain why they are used.

- Can accurately use intensifiers with whwords as well as a range of gradable and non-gradable adjectives in a sentence.

You are about to learn some amazingly helpful skills!

Try your utmost to pay attention.

Intensifiers and modifiers can be exceptionally useful tools.

Basic intensifiers: review

- We use intensifiers like really, totally and extremely to help strengthen adjectives in our writing.
- Intensifiers can tell the reader more about the intensity of a word. They generally function as adverbs, modifying the meaning of a sentence.

This exam is quite difficult!
I am totally interested in your work.
It's an extremely long drive home.

Review: basic intensifiers

- We use intensifiers to add force to the meaning of verbs, adjectives, or even other adverbs.
- Intensifiers like extremely and really are placed before the word they modify.

I think what you said is	very	hurtful.
That dog is	extremely	overweight.
It's an	unbelievably	hot day today!
The flight was	terribly	long.

Making sentences

Now let's practise some intensifiers you already know.

Create some sentences with the suggestions below.

For example: I find frozen ready meals rather convenient because I work incredibly long days.

frozen ready meals

catching the flu travelling

history books

skateboarding

philosophy

Review: more basic intensifiers

- Specific intensifiers can also be used to modify adverbs and adjectives.
- They can answer questions like how?, how much?, or how far?
- Use the example in the first row. The first day was overwhelming!
 - How overwhelming was it? Observe the answer below.

The first day was	slightly	overwhelming!
He trained	fairly	consistently.
I found the film's premise	somewhat	ridiculous.
The new boss is	kind of	annoying.

Grade the adjectives in the sentences below

1. I feel frightened, this horror film is good!

I feel quite frightened, this horror film is unbelievably good!

2. It's an interesting opinion that you shared.

3. John was enthusiastic when we walked into the office yesterday.

4. Vanessa was irritated with herself for forgetting her lunch.

5. Theresa was tired but exhilarated after she completed the marathon.

Intensifiers in reality!

Using the images below for inspiration, give two example sentences for each scenario using the given intensifiers.

truly

particularly

exceptionally

Try to use each of these intensifiers in a sentence

intensely

Advanced intensifiers

- Strong adjectives do not always work so well with the basic intensifier very.
- To sound natural, these adjectives rely on more advanced intensifiers. Otherwise known as modifiers.
- Some examples of strong adjectives include: perfect, superb, tiny and enormous. Because a word like superb already means very, very good, using a basic intensifier such as very would sound a little odd.
 - For example: that film was very superb! You would rather say: that film was absolutely superb!

The performance was	rather	wonderful.
Your dish was	particularly	delicious.
What an	astonishingly	brilliant book.
That is an	utterly	enormous elephant.

Match the intensifier

Choose the best intensifier for each sentence below.

- 1) Pierre's film was _____ powerful.
- 2) It had an _____ relevant message for our modern times.
- 3) We had a _____ good time at the party last night.
- 4) It's _____ important to practise the piece before your recital on Tuesday.
- 5) Arthur is an _____ intelligent individual.
- 6) William was _____ spent after the marathon.
- 7) Wow Kelly, your costume is _____ believable!
- 8) Johann is an _____ talented piano player.
- 9) Your behaviour is _____ ridiculous.
- 10) The general's army was _____ vanquished.

absolutely completely

exceptionally totally

really utterly incredibly remarkably especially

Let's get creative!

Remember when you have a strong adjective, you can't use very. With this in mind, try filling the gaps in the sentences below.

Be as creative as you like!

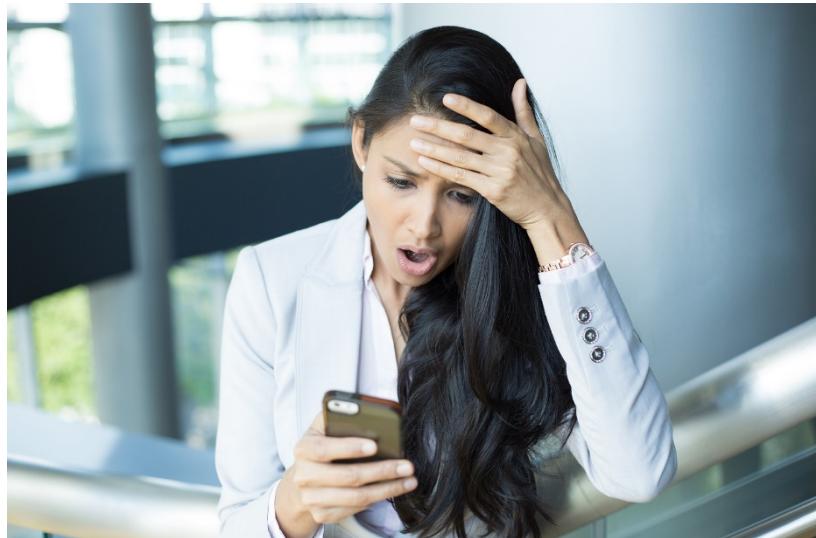

1. She was _____ terrified, it was her initial interview for the post.
2. The baby is _____ gorgeous.
3. That podcast was _____ hilarious.
4. When I got in the car this morning it was _____ freezing.
5. Your room needs cleaning, it's _____ filthy.
6. The film was _____ awful.
7. Your sister has passed her music exams, she is _____ thrilled!
8. That was a _____ excellent song.

What the...

- Intensifiers can also be used with wh- words to emphasise an emotion, usually shock or annoyance. We tend to use on earth or ever as the intensifier.

What on earth is this supposed to be?
Why did I ever think this is a good idea?
When did he ever make that joke?

What the...

Practise using intensifiers with the sentences below.
Remember you can use ever and on earth. Which fits best?

1. What _____ is going on here?
2. Who _____ does that dog belong to?
3. Why did I _____ suggest they should come over for dinner?
4. What _____ was I thinking when I purchased those shoes?
5. Oh my goodness, what _____ is your cousin doing in that photograph?

Remember the differences: intensifiers and modifiers

- Modifiers give us extra information about another word or noun phrase.
Modifiers can clarify, change, quantify or limit words and sentences.
- Some modifiers relate to certainty, some to opinion and others to intensity.
Their role in a sentence depends upon the context of the situation.
- If used correctly, modifiers can really transform a sentence!

- Intensifier – is a word used to make the meaning of another word stronger.
 - e.g. the surf is totally awesome
- Modifier - A word which adds additional information or meaning to a noun phrase
 - e.g. in the sentence: I'd like to try on that orange jumper in the vintage shop, orange and vintage shop are modifiers

Select the right modifier depending on the context

Johnny's got a _____ new record player.

- a. brand
- b. super
- c. great
- d. huge

It's a _____ fictitious account.

- a. massive
- b. brand

Gradable adjectives

- Adjectives can be broken down into gradable or non-gradable.
- Gradable adjectives can show different degrees of intensity.
 - Fast is a gradable adjective – you can run very fast or moderately fast.
 - Hot is also gradable – there are many different degrees of heat.

Observe the gradable adjectives in the sentences below. How can they be altered to change the meaning?

- It's a little chilly in here.
- You seem quite unwell.
- That painting is rather interesting.
- I am extremely sleepy.

Non-gradable adjectives

- Non-gradable adjectives take two forms:
 - Strong or extreme adjectives which cannot be marked by degrees
 - Absolute adjectives, which are either true or false
- Non-gradable adjectives cannot be marked with intensifiers.

Observe the non-gradable adjectives used in the sentences below:

- They got married yesterday!
- Be careful of the boiling water.
- He is a unique tiger.

Adverb + enough

- Using the form adverb + enough can be another tool in English to mean sufficiently, very, or somewhat.
- It usually allows us to say something has just met a threshold. For example:
 - Surprisingly enough, I ran into Judy yesterday in the park.
 - The sentence means it was quite a surprise to see Judy in the park.

- Surprisingly enough, I enjoyed the new James Bond film.
- Luckily enough, Darryl scored a basket in the game yesterday.
- Shockingly enough, they still aren't recycling plastics!
- Interestingly enough, I was reading about that just the other day.

Complete the sentences using the adverb + enough structure

1. Surprisingly enough...

I saw them last night, they said they were feeling under the weather.

2. Luckily enough...

3. Interestingly enough...

4. Sadly enough...

5. Amazingly enough...

Improvising a story

Imagine you're telling your friend a story about something that happened yesterday. You almost got into big trouble, but you managed to get out of it, thankfully!

Use as many adverb + enough sentences as you can.

I thought I was done for, but...

She caught up with me, then...

Emphasisers and amplifiers

- Emphasisers are a category of intensifier. They are usually placed before the word they emphasise.
- I really can't stand this wait
- I literally fell off my chair laughing
- She silently sat reading her book in the library

Amplifiers are also another category of intensifier. They stress a higher degree of emotion:

- I love you so much.
- I am amazingly fond of this part of the world.
- John was greatly moved by the tango performance.

Minimisers

- Minimisers lower the intensity and effect of the verb.
- Minimisers can also be referred to as downtoners.

- Slightly reduce the force of the verb:
 - I can kind of play badminton
- Show a minimised amount of meaning:
 - Jerry was slightly upset this morning
- Modify the level of truth:
 - It barely hurts

Amplify, emphasise or minimise?

Categorise the intensifiers according to amplify, emphasise or minimise the degree of meaning.

I'm going to win the race for sure!

He literally told Mr Dodd to shut up!

Your lecture was interesting to some extent.

That is absolutely ridiculous.

He heartily tore into his steak.

Jane mildly approved of her brother's tattoo.
